How you will learn

Your learning and teaching is organised to help you meet the learning outcomes (below) of the course. As a student, we expect you to be an active learner and to take responsibility for your learning, engaging with all of the material and sessions arranged for you.

Each course is divided into modules. You will find information on the virtual learning site (Moodle, see Academic Support below) about each of your modules, what to expect, the work you need to prepare, links to reading lists, information about how and when you will be assessed.

The programme consists of two intensively taught one-week modules. Students are able to take both modules consecutively on a FT basis; or chose the PT route taking one module each year.

Each intensive module is delivered across a concentrated five-day period.

Morning sessions are held in the classroom from 10am to 1pm, with the first ninety minutes consisting of a tutor-led seminar, followed by a further ninety minutes of practical, task-oriented group work / discussion. Students complete ten hours of directed learning prior to the commencement of the module.

Tutor-led museum and gallery visits take place each afternoon.

How we will assess you

Assessment is used to enhance your learning rather than simply to test it. Assessment on this course consists of a piece of project coursework for each module. For Collections Management, students document a museum bequest according to accredited museum standards. For Curating Practice, students devise their own exhibition project.

Learning outcomes (what you can expect to achieve)

'Learning outcomes' indicate what you should be able to know or do at the end of your course. Providing them helps you to understand what your teachers will expect and also the learning requirements upon which you will be assessed.

At the end of this course, you should be able to:

Subject Specific:

- Demonstrate an understanding of the fundamental principles of collections management and the role and responsibilities of the curator within the modern museum and gallery context;
- Understand the principles of museum collecting today, and their relevance to managing a collection;
- Catalogue an object to museum standards;
- Draw on theoretical concepts to understand the methodologies of collections management and care;
- Select objects and create coherent narratives with them;
- Understand the fundamental principles of object interpretation;
- Engage constructively in current debates concerning curatorship and its changing nature;
- Identify some of the challenges faced by the museum and gallery curator and collections manager today;

Intellectual:

- Communicate professionally (both orally and in writing);
- Apply theoretical arguments to focussed areas of research;

Practical:

- Debate in an atmosphere of open discussion;
- Understand the fundamental role and purpose of a collections database;

Personal and Social:

- Manage time effectively;
- Understand the importance of precision and attention to detail

Careers and further study

Graduates of this course can pursue career paths in:

- museums and galleries
- the media

- curators
- archivists.

Birkbeck offers a range of careers support to its students. You can find out more on the careers pages of our website.

Academic regulations and course management

Birkbeck's academic regulations are contained in its Common Award Scheme Regulations and Policies published by year of application on the Birkbeck website.

You will have access to a course handbook on Moodle and this will outline how your course is managed, including who to contact if you have any questions about your module or course.

Support for your study

Your learning at Birkbeck is supported by your teaching team and other resources and people in the College there to help you with your study. Birkbeck uses a virtual learning environment called Moodle and each course has a dedicated Moodle page and there are further Moodle sites for each of your modules. This will include your course handbook.

Birkbeck will introduce you to the Library and IT support, how to access materials online, including using Moodle, and provide you with an orientation which includes an online Moodle module to guide you through all of the support available. You will also be allocated a personal tutor and provided with information about learning support offered within your School and by the College.

Please check our website for more information about student support services. This covers the whole of your time as a student with us including learning support and support for your wellbeing.

Quality and standards at Birkbeck

Birkbeck's courses are subject to our quality assurance procedures. This means that new courses must follow our design principles and meet the requirements of our academic regulations. Each new course or module is subject to a course approval process where the proposal is scrutinised by subject specialists, quality professionals and external representatives to ensure that it will offer an excellent student experience and meet the expectation of regulatory and other professional bodies.

You will be invited to participate in an online survey for each module you take. We take these surveys seriously and they are considered by the course team to develop both modules and the overall courses. Please take the time to complete any surveys you are sent as a student.

We conduct an annual process of reviewing our portfolio of courses which analyses student achievement, equality data and includes an action plan for each department to identify ongoing enhancements to our education, including changes made as a result of student feedback.

Our periodic review process is a regular check (usually every four years) on the courses by department with a specialist team including students.

Each course will have an external examiner associated with it who produces an annual report and any recommendations. Students can read the most recent external examiner reports on the course Moodle pages. Our courses are all subject to Birkbeck Baseline Standards for our Moodle module information. This supports the accessibility of our education including expectations of what information is provided online for students.

The information in this programme specification has been approved by the College's Academic Board and every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information it contains.

Programme specifications are reviewed periodically. If any changes are made to courses, including core and/or compulsory modules, the relevant department is required to provide a revised programme specification. Students will be notified of any changes via Moodle.

Further information about specifications and an archive of programme specifications for the College's courses is available online.
