Course aims

The main aim of the programme is to provide a high level of sustainable educational offering in Marketing, which attracts high quality, highly motivated students from around the globe. Those undertaking the programme will be provided with a comprehensive understanding of the relevance and necessity of Marketing, and the research findings referred to throughout the programme will allow those completing the programme of study to develop objective insights into the subject matter and learn about Marketing decision-making process.

The programme will link theory and practice, and will be of benefit to those individuals that either have already acquired an appreciation of Marketing and wish to develop further insights into the subject or those individuals that have limited knowledge of the subject and wish to develop their understanding and appreciation of it or use the knowledge gained to embark on a Marketing or Marketing related career. The programme will be of interest to various stakeholders and it is envisaged that multinational corporations as well as a range of for-profit and not-for-profit organizations will either sponsor and/or recruit students from the programme. Students will be introduced to the foundation of marketing, the theoretical underpinnings, the marketing mixes and current issues and future trends of Marketing. Students will be confronted with a number of relevant issues includes branding, customer relationship management, e-marketing and green marketing for example, and will find the programme up-to-date, intellectually inspiring and relevant. Critical thinking and problem focused decision-making will be key components of the programme of study.

The programme is accredited by the Chartered Institute of Marketing (CIM). The accreditation with CIM gives students the opportunity to gain CIM professional marketing qualifications through their Graduate Gateway Accreditation (GGA) scheme. The programme provides exemption from the CIM Marketing and Digital Strategy module of the CIM Diploma in Professional Marketing and Diploma in Professional Digital Marketing.

How you will learn

Your learning and teaching is organised to help you meet the learning outcomes (see relevant section below) of the course. As a student, we expect you to be an active learner and to take responsibility for your learning, engaging with all of the material and sessions arranged for you.

Each course is divided into modules. You will find information on the virtual learning site (Moodle, see Academic Support below) about each of your modules, what to expect, the work you need to prepare, links to reading lists, information about how and when you will be assessed.

Your learning for this course will be organised around the activities outlined below.

The teaching strategy deployed will allow the needs of mature students that undertake either full-time or part-time study, as well as highly motivated younger students without work experience, to gain up-to-date knowledge which enhances their career prospects. The planning of the programme of study has taken into account:

1. The need for evening lectures and seminars to be adequately scheduled.
2. An acceptable workload and its distribution throughout the terms.
3. Exposure to the actual practice of marketing through visits, guest lecturers and simulations
4. A range of assessment methods to stimulate interaction.

Accurate information is in the form of details in the postgraduate handbook, which acts as a guide and which supports independent learning.

As regards the modules associated with the MSc Marketing, it can be noted that the lectures are sequenced in a logical manner and will allow the student to build up their understanding of the subject, week by week. The modules have been designed so that the lectures provide an overview of the relevant issues and the seminars that accompany the lectures allow the problems, issues and comparative facts and approaches, to be interpreted and explained in a logical manner. The aims and objectives for each module will be further enhanced by the aims and objectives for each lecture, and students will be able to develop a number of in-depth insights and question the subject matter. Learning outcomes are defined for all taught courses each week and are detailed in the module/subject leaflet. The aims and objectives of each module are cited in the module/subject leaflet. Furthermore, the module/subject leaflet also outlines the readings for each lecture and the seminar topics are listed on a weekly basis as well. The contact details of the staff responsible for teaching the modules are provided and essential information relating to the assignment and the overall assessment are provided. Further materials are distributed in class each week as is necessary and when appropriate, guidance is provided with respect to dissertations, revision and examination technique. Appropriate use is also made of on-line learning facilities such as Moodle.

The formal mechanisms of teaching and learning include a combination of lectures, directed readings, seminar discussions which involve group work and presentations, and close supervision in independent research. As a result, the aims and learning outcomes are both clearly understood and effectively achieved by students with the necessary support from academic members of staff.

How we will assess you

The course will use a variety of assessment methods. Assessment is used to enhance your learning rather than simply to test it. For most of the modules associated with this course, your assessment will be through the following types of assessment.

Essays which will develop in length and expected complexity as you progress through your studies, quizzes and multiple-choice questionnaires, practical assessments, exams and individual coursework.

Learning outcomes (what you can expect to achieve)

'Learning outcomes' indicate what you should be able to know or do at the end of your course. Providing them helps you to understand what your teachers will expect and also the learning requirements upon which you will be assessed.

On successful completion of this programme a student will be expected to be able to:

Careers and further study

You will find Marketing postgraduates in the following kinds of roles: marketing analysts, assistants, managers or executives; consultants in the private, public and third sectors; working for organizations in the public and private sector. The MSc Marketing also provides a strong foundation for PhD research in the area.

Birkbeck offers a range of careers support to its students. You can find out more on the careers pages of our website.

Academic regulations and course management

Birkbeck's academic regulations are contained in its Common Award Scheme Regulations and Policies published by year of application on the Birkbeck website.

You will have access to a course handbook on Moodle and this will outline how your course is managed, including who to contact if you have any questions about your module or course.

Support for your study

Your learning at Birkbeck is supported by your teaching team and other resources and people in the College there to help you with your study. Birkbeck uses a virtual learning environment called Moodle and each course has a dedicated Moodle page and there are further Moodle sites for each of your modules. This will include your course handbook.

Birkbeck will introduce you to the Library and IT support, how to access materials online, including using Moodle, and provide you with an orientation which includes an online Moodle module to guide you through all of the support available. You will also be allocated a personal tutor and provided with information about learning support offered within your School and by the College.

Please check our website for more information about student support services. This covers the whole of your time as a student with us including learning support and support for your wellbeing.

Quality and standards at Birkbeck

Birkbeck's courses are subject to our quality assurance procedures. This means that new courses must follow our design principles and meet the requirements of our academic regulations. Each new course or module is subject to a course approval process where the proposal is scrutinised by subject specialists, quality professionals and external representatives to ensure that it will offer an excellent student experience and meet the expectation of regulatory and other professional bodies.

You will be invited to participate in an online survey for each module you take. We take these surveys seriously and they are considered by the course team to develop both modules and the overall courses. Please take the time to complete any surveys you are sent as a student.

We conduct an annual process of reviewing our portfolio of courses which analyses student achievement, equality data and includes an action plan for each department to identify ongoing enhancements to our education, including changes made as a result of student feedback.

Our periodic review process is a regular check (usually every four years) on the courses by department with a specialist team including students.

Each course will have an external examiner associated with it who produces an annual report and any recommendations. Students can read the most recent external examiner reports on the course Moodle pages. Our courses are all subject to Birkbeck Baseline Standards for our Moodle module information. This supports the accessibility of our education including expectations of what information is provided online for students.

The information in this programme specification has been approved by the College's Academic Board and every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the information it contains.

Programme specifications are reviewed periodically. If any changes are made to courses, including core and/or compulsory modules, the relevant department is required to provide a revised programme specification. Students will be notified of any changes via Moodle.

Further information about specifications and an archive of programme specifications for the College's courses is available online.
